

Orange Park Blvd Reopens February 16th!

The Handy Creek Bridge construction is nearing its finish and Orange Park Blvd. is scheduled to reopen on Thursday, February 16th. -It's about time! Laura Thomas and Peter Jacklin have details to share about the Handy Creek Bridge Dedication scheduled to follow next Saturday.

The Official Bridge Dedication Ceremony Is Set!

~ Please Join Us At The Bridge ~

Saturday, February 18th at 11 AM

February 16th brings an end to several months of construction and rerouted traffic in OPA. Orange Park Association thanks the community for their cooperation and patience. A huge thank you goes out to 3rd District Supervisor Bill Campbell for recognizing the need for Handy Creek's widening and allocating funds for the project. Tom Davidson deserves great credit for his instrumental part in moving the project forward. Special thanks, also, to the construction crews and county personnel, who worked in harmony with the community during construction. Now, properties upstream from the bridge will be less worried about flooding, when the next heavy rains come. OPA trail users will also be able to enjoy the added benefit of a new, maintenance free trail bridge, which accompanies the companion road bridge.

Please join us at the new bridge for this dedication (between Hillside and Clark).
Equestrians, hikers, and bikers are welcome and encouraged!
Human and equine refreshments will be served.
